McDonough's Sporting Saloon at Alexandria, Ind.

WHERE BOXERS TRAIN.

My Brother's Place at St. Joseph, Mo., Owned by Knopinski Bros.

(No. 178—With Photo.)

P. J. McDonough has a great sporting saloon conveniently located on the main street of Alexandria, Ind. A glance at the photograph on another page will show what the interior is like.

In the rear there is a completely equipped gymnasium where the fighters train for the contests held in Alexandria and Ellwood.

The dog on the bar is somewhat of a fighter himself. He has figured in eighteen contests and has yet to lose his first one.

Among the men pictured in the photograph are Gardner, Kennedy, Burns, McWinters and their trainers, as well as Herman Fisher, the matchmaker for the club.

There are two boxing clubs in town where contests can be held without interference.

MY BROTHER'S PLACE.

(No. 179—With Photo.)

John and George Knopinski own and conduct a saloon at 902 South Eighteenth street, St. Joseph, Mo., which they have christened the "1900 Bar—My Brother's Place."

The establishment is very well kept and patrons are supplied with the very best in the line of liquors and mixed drinks.

WAVED A BUTCHER KNIFE.

The Girl in the Case Saved Herself by Fast Sprinting.

A good-looking, buxom girl, who knew how to sprint, and who was putting all of her knowledge in practice, dashed frantically into the police station at Columbus, O., the other evening, pursued by a young man who was wildly waving a big butcher knife. When he saw the girl had gained shelter he quit and hung around to await developments.

Once inside the station the girl told a startling story of abduction and attempted murder. She alleged that the man who had pursued her had kept her locked in a room on South High street for three days, during nearly all of which time he had been half crazed by drink and had several times attempted to kill her.

The night before he brought in a bottle of carbolic acid, which he tried to force her to drink. She refused to do so, and in the effort to force it down her throat her lips and the front of her dress were burned in half a dozen places. When this attempt to kill her failed he tried to use a butcher knife, but, thanks to repeated potations, he was unable to do so effectively.

The next evening when he lay down to sleep she managed to open a window and escape via the roof of a lower part of the building. He discovered her escape just as she reached the ground, and then a mad race began for the police station, which was but a few squares distant.

When a detective, armed with a warrant, left the station, the man dodged out from behind a telephone pole and broke for liberty. He managed to effect his escape temporarily.

SCHAEFFER DECLINES TO SWIM.

The fact has been definitely settled that E. Carroll Schaeffer, of the National Swimming Association, of Philadelphia, the American amateur swimmer and record holder, will not invade England this year to compete for the world's swimming championship, as was previously but prematurely announced. At the time of the decision of the recent A. A. U. swimming championships, held at Buffalo, where the little swimming marvel easily outclassed all the other first-class swimmers who took part, and on which occasion he made two new American records for the 220 yards and 440 yards championships, the question of sending him abroad came up, but since then the champion has gone out of strict training and has been having a good time on a vacation.

BATHING COSTUMES

WORN BY FAIR MAIDS

SCANDALIZE THE PRUDES

A Pair of Soubrettes Who Built Their Own Suits Come to Grief After Taking a Dip at Brighton Beach.

THEY WERE HEADLINERS FOR A BRIEF PERIOD.

Boston Maids in Red Costumes Shock the Villagers of Brant Rock, Mass., by Riding in an Ice Wagon and Lunching in a Public Place.

The bathing girls seem to have the call just now, and from the seaside resorts come stories of their pranks.

Two soubrettes shocked Brighton Beach the other day and nearly started a revolution. To say that their bathing suits were risque would be putting it very mild, indeed—they would have been great for a burlesque show, but for the beach—never! Both of them were ordered to leave, and they did so, feeling very much humiliated, uttering sarcastic comments on the management of the place and asking each other audibly if there had not been some mistake, and if it were possible they unwittingly had strayed into Ocean Grove.

Unprejudiced observers, however, were willing to make affidavit that the two young women of the stage had astounded Brighton Beach with the most audacious bathing costumes ever seen there.

The bathing suits which caused all the trouble were home made and unfortunately never had been subjected to the "ordeal by water." On the sands, while the young women posed picturesquely, they were not in any fashion censurable, although they looked like the lithograph pictures of French seaside resorts.

The entrance into the water tested the bathing suits beyond the breaking strain, however. They were made of blue and white gauze and revealed nothing but the symmetry of outline of the two actresses as they waded out into the water. When they waded out of the water the difference could be noted by the most casual observer. Color was added to outline, and through the wet masses of filmy gauze glimpses could be caught of the supposedly dainty flesh tints of the soubrettes.

They were the last to observe the effect of water on their costumes. As they sat huddled together upon the sand they apparently were happy and contented and shook out their blonde and brunette tresses to dry, blissfully oblivious of the sensation they were creating.

Gradually a crowd began to gather about them and they soon perceived they were being gazed upon by several hundred men, who were enjoying themselves hugely. Anon, lightly uttered comments reached their ears.

"That girl in the yellow hair is a bleached blonde," said one knowing young man to his companion. "She's a peroxide, but you'd never suspect it."

"How do you know?" asked his companion, envious of the other man's knowledge.

"Look again," said the first man.

Then the other looked again, noticed the cutaneous coloring of the young woman's arms, laughed wildly and muttered something about the drinks being on him.

As a matter of fact, the bathing suits concealed little. The wet gauze clung to the two actresses like court plaster and through its thin meshes showed every variation of tint and color. They had basked not wisely but too well when they made those bathing suits.

Suddenly, through the now greatly increased circle of ardent admirers burst an elderly woman, who took one look and fled up the beach. Catching a bathhouse attendant, she gasped:

"There's two women down there with bathing suits made out of face veils. It's just awful!"

The bathhouse attendant dashed up and ordered the two women to make a quick flank movement for the bathhouses and get out of the costumes.

Then, by adding this curt comment upon their attire to the remarks they had heard, they gathered the impression there was something radically wrong with their suits. When they rose to their feet and gazed upon each other they simultaneously burst into tears and begged for wraps.

They were conducted to the bathhouses as quickly as possible, made to dress and then requested to leave. They departed with their footsteps turned in the direction of Coney Island, and the avowed determination of finishing their swim.

Girl Bathers Wore Red.

A joyous party of eight Boston girls, gorgeously arrayed in bright red bathing suits, perched on an ice wagon, created a most decided and emphatic sensation at Brant Rock, Mass., the other day, and the indignation among the villagers is even greater than last year, when summer girls in bathing suits went to the post-office for their mail.

The young women, who are spending the summer months in Duxbury, started to walk to Brant Rock. Their suits were cut on the latest pattern, with red stockings, kid slippers with French heels and colored shoestrings.

The young women met an ice wagon. They asked for a ride, and the iceman took them in. They found seats on the canvas that covered the ice, protecting it from the rays of the sun, and proceeded to make things lively for the iceman, who was the object of many remarks from persons whom he met.

"How'd you like to be the iceman?" yelled the small boys along the road.

Arriving here they drove through the square, but the iceman was given such a broadside of remarks that he dumped his fair load. The girls in red were not to be dismayed.

"Let's have some ice cream," said one, and all pushed into the Ocean House.

As they ate their cream the place filled with customers. The girls in the scanty bathing suits drew trade as an old Brant Rock fisherman draws perch from the water off Hewitt's Point, and the business that afternoon was the best of the season.

Two or three persons tried to take snap shots at the young women, but they would not allow that. They were taken home from there by a young man in an express wagon. They refused to disclose their names, but were chaperoned by a Newtonville matron.

Several young women gave a whist party in a cottage at Webster Park. They were attired in their bathing costumes, but kept indoors. The first prize was a handsome new bathing suit, and the consolation prize a pair of bathing shoes.

FROLICS ON THE BEACH.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

The most unconventional place in the world is Atlantic City, N. J., and the artist who has just returned from his vacation at that charming resort faithfully depicts a couple of characteristic scenes in this issue. To dine in one's bathing suit is not at all remarkable; in fact it is quite a common occurrence, and the man who draws the pictures for this paper says he wouldn't mind it a bit if it were more generally put in practice, because it gives him a fine chance to make anatomical studies.

A KNICKERBOCKER ESCAPE.

[SUBJECT OF ILLUSTRATION.]

Two venturesome young women of Detroit, Mich., have just reached home after a most thrilling and sensational experience, and one which they will not very soon forget. They are both expert bicyclists and a long while ago they started on a wheeling trip to the Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y. They had no adventures of particular interest going, except perhaps, the meeting with a few tramps on the road, and eventually they arrived at the big fair, dusty and rather tired, but in good spirits.

For two weeks they remained in the Bison City, seeing all the sights and having a glorious time, and then disaster came.

They were robbed!

They not only lost their wheels, but their money and spare clothing, as well. They had no friends in the city and didn't know exactly what to do, when one said:

"Well, let's be game anyhow, and get back the best way we can."

"But how?"

"Why, we'll beat our way back on freight trains, and get hitches whenever we can."

"All right, I'm willing. But I'd like to go home in style."

"Well, we'll go home in style all right."

That was the start. They went down to the freight yards, passed a couple of grim-looking guardians, and after finding out what train was going to start first for the west, clambered aboard. In a couple of hours they were started on their homeward journey, and a diary kept by one of the girls showed at a glance just what kind of a time they had.

They were put off trains fourteen times; were invited to ride to the end of the run six times; slept in four different baggage cars, and were not insulted during the entire trip, which consumed ten days.

HOGAN BROTHERS.

TOOK TO THE WOODS WHEN

HE SAW THE GUN

Her Father Only Wanted to Show it to Him.

HE RAN FOR HIS LIFE.

Left Behind His Hat and Cane and He Lost the Girl Forever.

They were telling a funny story about a young man in Elizabeth, N. J., some time ago, and he hasn't yet recovered from the effects of it. He was a bright young fellow, inclined to be a trifle timid, but in spite of all that he thought he was the real thing when it came to looks and that he was a lady killer from the village. But as a matter of fact, he was an average young fellow, except in looks.

In this respect he was rather above the average, and recognized the fact of course. There was a certain young girl who happened to be the peculiar favorite in the community, and she deserved all the wooing she received, for she was really a splendid woman and, in fact, had all the charming attributes of a Jersey belle—lips like roses, cheeks after the tint of the peach blossom; pretty, white, evenly set teeth; curls and sinuous curves, and all that sort of thing. She was simply a pink dream, and there was great rivalry among the young fellows who visited her.

On a certain evening the young gentleman who figures in this tale, brushed his hair, polished his teeth and went forth to woo the rustic queen. The old gentleman was at home, and it ought to be remarked at this point that the old man was very fond of hunting, and he had just purchased a new breech-loading shotgun, and his exuberance over the event was positively boyish. The young lady happened to drift back into the sitting room and found her father explaining to a friend the many advantages of the new shotgun, and telling what he would do to his hunting companions on the next day, when they would go out to the lake.

The young lady was enthusiastic over the weapon, and, turning to her father, she said:

"Oh, papa dear, take the gun in and show it to Mr. Blank! I'm sure he'd be delighted to see it, for, you know, he is so fond of hunting!"

The old gentleman acted on the suggestion, and, excusing himself from his guest, made a start for the parlor, with the shotgun in his hand. He shoved the door of the parlor open and rushed in rather hurriedly.

Well, the young man rushed out after the same fashion, and he left a nicely polished cane and a brand-new hat on the rack. One of his rivals had told him that the old gentleman did not like him and that he seriously objected to the attention he was paying to the young lady. When the old gentleman broke into the parlor with a shotgun, the young fellow could hear the leaden pellets rattling in his face, and he broke the sprinting record of the community. He recovered the hat and cane, but lost the girl.

[WITH PHOTO.]

The American House Sports, of Slatington, Pa., includes some very prominent people of the town. After returning from a hunting expedition they had this photograph taken especially for this paper. The American House is situated on lower Main street, a few minutes walk from the depot. Robert C. Hunt whose photo appears almost in the center of the group is a fine fellow. He is a member of many secret organizations, gun clubs, etc. His friends are numerous and his hotel enjoys an excellent patronage. The bar at this popular resort is well stocked and we invite you to call when in town. L. F. Rohrbach is the obliging man behind this bar, and will treat you right.

WHEN A FIGHT IS ON

The "Gallus Gent," Who Dresses Loud, Always Has a Bet Down and is the Hardest Kind of a "Rooter."

SOCIETY "NOBS" WHO ENJOY THE GAME.

Pay the Biggest Money and Are Never in the Way---Cheap Sports Who "Beat the Door"---Women Sneak in, Sometimes.

When John L. Sullivan was matched to meet Jim Corbett for the heavyweight championship of the world, a purse of $20,000 and stakes amounting to $25,000, considerable interest was taken in the proposed mill, as the man from Boston had never been conquered. Sullivan had without doubt one of the largest followings of any man that ever stepped into the ring, and they were not of the kind that patronized the game for what money there was in it. The major portion of his admirers were men who liked to look at a scientific contest, and these people thought there was no one who could put up one like the man from the Hub.

New Orleans was decided upon as the battleground, and several days before the time of meeting excursion parties were made up, and it was indeed surprising to see the class of people who went South to see the contest. There were bankers, brokers, merchants, and, in fact, many men who would not have their names appear in the papers as being present at such a meeting for anything. The defeat of Sullivan was something that touched them very deeply, for it was his first. This was on the 7th of September, 1892. Five years later the conqueror of the only John L. was challenged by Fitzsimmons, but there was not at the ringside the same class of people who had witnessed Sullivan go down in the twenty-first round from a blow delivered by the Californian over the heart. They had seen the champion of champions defeated, and interest seemed to be lost in future contests.

The passage of the Horton law gave stimulus to the sport in the East, and the clubs which organized when it went into effect seemed to be well patronized. The talent preferred to see heavyweights battle, but they were so high priced that it was difficult for any of the clubs to reach them, so that they could make any money out of the contests. Competition was strong, and the managers were willing to bid fabulous prices for bouts of all sorts. Every club had a certain number of boxes for admirers of the manly art willing to pay as high as $5 for a seat, and that class seldom put in an appearance unless a good bout was expected.

It is an interesting sight to stand in front of one of the clubhouses and watch the people who patronize the game. The early arrivals are generally the "profess," and then they try all sorts of schemes to work their way in. They will try to cultivate, if possible, the friendship of one of the managers of the pugilists and thus try to work their way past the turnstiles. But there is generally a man to look after such people, and nine times out of ten they are turned down. The writer had occasion not long ago to stand at one of the entrances to a clubhouse and give attention to the people who tried to work their way past the doortender.

"Say," said one of the "profess," as he approached the door, "I have been sent up to see if the dressing-room is all right for the man I am going to help second to-night."

"Is that so," said the man at the gate.

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "The manager is to follow me in a few minutes and you see I want to have everything O. K. for him."

"Can't go by the gate," said the man and the would-be second turned away. But he did not disappear. He hung around the door and was soon joined by others who had tried to work the same game. They were as thick as flies around a piece of sugar-coated cake on a warm day. They were not to be balked, however, for the "profess" can always find some way to see a battle without paying. If the building is not too high they generally manage to climb on the roof and look down on the ring. I have known it to rain while these followers of the ring were on the roof watching the contest. A little matter like rain did not seem to bother them in the least. If it is impossible to reach the roof they manage some way to get a view through a window, and clubhouses have found it necessary to board up all these. Anything to beat the game seems to be their motto.

Another class who make life a burden for the managers are the people who congregate around the doors in order to be either passed or taken in by some friend. They can always be found in large numbers, and are known as the people who never "give up" to see a fight. At times these men become very bold and resort to all sorts of schemes to get in, but usually without success. They will not take a chance of climbing the roof like the "profess," because they lack the nerve. They will stand at the doors from the time they are opened until they close and go away satisfied when they learn the result of the contests.

The out-and-out sport is the man who takes in all the shows and pays his way. He generally appears at the clubhouse with a suit of the latest pattern, a cigar much coveted in his mouth, and a Fedora hat of the latest make. He steps up to the window where the tickets are on sale, pulls out a roll of bills, and passes in the price of a good seat. If he is well known he generally tries to show himself as much as possible to the patrons of the sport. He walks all around the building, and when he goes to his seat he throws the lapel of his coat back and blows clouds of smoke in the air. He at times manages to get over to the corner of his favorite in the battle and whispers into the ear of one of the handlers some points as to how the man should be handled. He bets his money, and if he picks the winner he generally makes a big splurge over the matter. At times he is very annoying, because he gets in the way of people who have paid to have a good view of the contest, and, in fact, he is looked upon as a nuisance. But he can never be squelched. He always looks upon himself as "once a sport always a sport."

"The sport is all right," said a well-known patron to me recently, "but there is not the interest taken in it now that there was some years ago. I have known men to go to the Pacific coast to see a fight, but it of the contestants. The anticipated police interference did not occur, although sheriffs and police presence made the crowd nervous.

Both men were in fine condition and mixed it lively and scientifically, each landing many clean hits and blocking many. In the eighth Bezenah appeared lacking in steam from Sprague's stiff punches, but rallied in the fourteenth, and, while not hitting as often or as hard as Sprague, held his own admirably.

Effective blows were looked for in the last five rounds and both boxed carefully. The Covington lad landed repeatedly on Sprague's wind and neck, but the punishment was not severe. Bezenah's wind and grit saved the decision from being rendered against him. Both were favorites, and the decision was satisfactory. Sprague showed slightly in science over Bezenah.

GOOD FIGHTS AT BUTTE.

Butte, Mont., is getting to be quite a lively pugilistic centre. In a fight recently held there Jack Wade, of Salt Lake, defeated Jack Donnelly, of St. Louis, in the third round of what was to have been a twenty-round go at the Saucer Bicycle Track. Old ring followers say it was the fastest fight they ever saw. From the sound of the gong the men went at it hammer and tongs.

In the preliminaries "Kid" Lavelle, of Butte, and Jerry McCarthy, of Denver, went seven fierce rounds before the referee stopped them and gave the decision to McCarthy. Lavelle was badly used up.

SMALL TALK

ABOUT THE PUGS

Lively Gossip of Interest Concerning the Doings of the Fighters.

Tom Sharkey threatens to claim the heavyweight championship if Jim Jeffries refuses to fight him.

Frank Erne, the lightweight champion, is in New York. He wants to fight the winner of the McFadden-Ferns contest.

Eddie Loeber, the veteran amateur, wants to fight McGovern for a side bet of $5,000 and the featherweight championship.

Dick Davis, victor in the recent prize fight at Newport, Va.; P. E. Baum, referee, and Tom Wilson, a second, have been arrested.

Dave Sullivan is thinking of making another visit to England. Sullivan has not been there since he was defeated by Pedlar Palmer.

Bat Masterson is now in Saratoga, N. Y., following the ponies. The popular Denverite is expected to visit the Pacific Coast this winter.

"Kid" Broad and Tim Callahan, featherweight pugilists, will meet in a twenty-round contest before the Trenton (N. J.) Athletic Club the latter part of next month.

Peter Maher has had enough of the wrestling game. He says it's too much like working in a rolling mill. He is now going after easy game. He has challenged Jim Jeffries.

The Fort Erie Athletic Club, of Canada, has matched Tommy West and Al Weing, of Buffalo, to box twenty rounds on Sept. 26. The men will fight at the middleweight limit.

Will Curley, the English 122-pounder, whose only match in this country was with George Dixon, who defeated him, is thinking of visiting America again. Better think again!

Butte, Mont., is not only after heavyweights but is also out for lightweights. The Olympic Club offers a purse for Mose La Fontaine to fight "Kid" McPartland or Matty Matthews.

Harry Covert, the Texas middleweight, now at Terre Haute, Ind., states that he will take on "Kid" Hubert at Evansville any time during the latter part of August or early in September.

It is reported that Jim Kennedy, the former business partner of Billy Brady, and matchmaker for the Twentieth Century Club of Frisco, is soon to start an athletic club in Denver, Col.

Both Pedlar Palmer and Ben Jordan are so anxious to see Terry McGovern whipped that they will accompany Jack Roberts to this country next month and train him for his go with Terry.

Marvin Hart, the Louisville middleweight, has received a very enticing offer from an English athletic club to meet Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, on the other side. Hart has the matter under consideration.

Matchmaker William Carroll, of the Alpha Club, of Los Angeles, Cal., is trying to match the winner of the Turner-Queenan fight with Henry Lewis, or he will match him against Mike Donovan, the Eastern welter.

A budding humorist sends the following anent Terry McGovern's coming struggle with Jack Roberts, of England: "Terry McGovern may not be a drinker, but he may have to take a few English 'punches' when he tackles Roberts."

Jack Root's reason for refusing to meet Marvin Hart at Louisville the latter part of this month is rather peculiar. Root states that he did not think that Hart and himself would draw and that he could make more money by fighting another man.

"Australian" Jim Ryan, who has been out of the running ever since the injury to his left eye in the fight with Marvin Hart, announces his return to the ring. Ryan is after another meeting with Hart, and says the latter can name his own terms.

Dan Creedon is contemplating a trip to England. The once-noted Australian middleweight says that he has been taking good care of his health and his appearance does not belie this statement. Creedon is anxious to try his skill against Jack O'Brien.

Peter Maher has received word that if he will come to the Pacific Coast he will be able to secure a match with Joe Kennedy. The latter was whipped in handy fashion by Maher, a few years ago, but since that time Kennedy, it is said, has improved greatly.

Jack McKeever, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has taken "Denver Kid" Davis in hand and has him under contract for one year. McKeever will match the "Kid" to fight any boy in the country at 118 pounds at 3 o'clock, Jimmy Dunn, of New Castle, Pa., preferred.

Terrence McGovern will run for alderman from his Brooklyn district. Should he be unfortunate enough to get into the board the Brooklyn whirlwind will experience more phases of the knockout punch than he ever gave to opponents in the twenty-four-foot ring.

Matty Matthews has turned manager and has two fighters under his wing, Tim Kearns and Jim Galvin, the Irish middleweight. Matthews says that he is ready to sign articles for a match between Kearns and any lightweight breathing, and will pit Galvin against any first-class 158-pounder.

"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien will not take on Joe Walcott. "Parson" Davies writes from London that he cannot get the "champion heavyweight of England" to talk business on the Walcott match at present. Jack has several matches on, and he will not receive Walcott's card until he gets good and ready.

would be hard to get any of the New York sports out of their own city now to see a battle. The fact is, there has been too much of the game within the past few years, and, in fact, it has been overdone. I honestly believe that if it was as well conducted in the future as it has been in the past no trouble would be found in bringing together the men who are at the top of the ladder in the heavyweight class.

Warren Lewis, of the Greater New York A. C., who died the other day, when that organization was started, favored the admission of women to see the contests, but, of course, his idea was never executed. Mrs. Fitzsimmons was at the ringside when her husband met Corbett, and had it not been for her presence some say the lanky pugilist would never have won. A few years ago a woman managed to get into one of the clubs in this section by disguising herself in men's clothing. She was arrested, but escaped punishment. Women should never be admitted to fights, and if they were it is safe to say that the sport would soon be killed.

POLICE SAW A HARD FIGHT.

Referee Herman Marx declared the fight a draw between Andy Bezenah, of Covington, Ky., and Eddie Sprague, of Streator, Ill., which was fought at Muncie, Ind., on August 13. The contest, which was fierce from start, was witnessed by an immense crowd, large numbers coming from Cincinnati and Streator, homes of that neighborhood. For some time the respective merits of both men have been under discussion in the village, and as a test of strength and skill a match was arranged. A number of friends of both parties gathered at the ringside and the excitement was intense.

The men slugged each other from the very start, and it was clearly evident that the fight would not last many rounds. Both men went to their corners very tired in the first round. In the second round there was a rush, a mixup, a well-directed punch on the jaw, one man went down and out and the thing was over.

SHERIFF AT THE RINGSIDE.

All the Rochester, N. Y., sports were anticipating a finish fight between Barney Farrell and Mike Lansing, two local heavyweight boxers, the other night, but Deputy Sheriffs Birdsall, Adams and Pollock were on the scene for four hours before the crowd came. About 9 o'clock a crowd of about 200 had collected at the place of battle and the men were ready to go on. The deputies informed them that if they donned the gloves they would be placed under arrest. They obeyed orders and did not go on.

Mike Donovan, of Rochester, who claims the welterweight championship, and Joe Young, of Buffalo, were advertised to spar four friendly rounds at Ontario Beach, a summer resort near Rochester, and the pavilion was crowded with people who paid an admission to see the men perform. The men were about to go on when Sheriff Ford and several of his deputies stepped on the stage and informed them that they would be placed under arrest if they went on.

JEFFRIES AND RUHLIN

AGREE TO SIGN ARTICLES FOR A CHAMPIONSHIP

FIGHT IN DECEMBER

Jim Corbett Back From Europe, But Omits to Explain Why King Edward and Emperor Wilhelm Did Not Meet Him.

DIXON A STEPPING STONE FOR YOUNG CORBETT

Denverite Will Probably Fight Terry McGovern---Butte, Mont., in the Fighting Game---Gossip and Timely Small Talk.

The indications are again that Jeffries and Ruhlín will fight for the championship. At the time of writing this a meeting of their respective representatives has been arranged to sign articles and post-fights. That is the situation now, but we all know how capricious these merry milt slingers are and there is always a chance of something breaking in on the combination. This will, Jeffries says, be his last fight, as he intends to "pass up" the game for good.

Now that the champion has decided to give up "resting," and also fixed his fight with Ruhlín as the last on the programme, he will meet "all comers" between now and whatever date is set for the big fight, which will probably be held in December. This is to let Sharkey in, who is thought to be a cinch for the boiler-maker.

Apropos of Barney Reich's proposition to back Sharkey for $5,000 against Jeffries, 'Frisco sports are wondering where the sailor's German partner gets his money, for no one there seriously considers Sharkey as a possibility for the championship. He has recently fallen into the piker class. "Denver Ed" Martin only a few days ago defeated Russell, who gave Sharkey such a hard fight, and the sailor's encounter with "Mexican Pete," who won on a foul, is so recent a memory as to create the belief that Barney Reich's money is being made in some private foundry.

Already rumors of a pre-arrangement of the fight are in circulation on the Coast. A good many sporting men believe that Ruhlín had an absolute understanding with Jeffries before they left for the Coast, and that the projected fight is nothing more nor less than a money-making affair, and that Ruhlín is scheduled to lose for a stipulated portion of the gate receipts. This belief is gaining ground since the announcement that Jeffries wants to fight Sharkey, and this before he meets Ruhlín.

Both Ruhlín and his manager appear to be afraid that Jeffries will not make good and sign articles, and they are indulging in a lot of conversational fireworks calculated to show that they are out for the title and nothing else.

Jim Corbett is back from Europe, but strange to say his home coming didn't excite any particular amount of enthusiasm. No bonfires were burned in his honor and the most enthusiastic expression of welcome came from a small fox terrier which accompanied Frank Phillips, Corbett's partner, to the steamship. The little ki-yi wagged his stumpy apology for a tail as the former champion dashed down the gang-plank, Phillips gave his hand a quick, convulsive grasp and the incident was closed. I met Corbett at the Cherry Blossom Grove in the evening and tried to get him to tell about his sparring for the edification of King Edward; how proficient a pupil Emperor Wilhelm proved to be; whether the Czar of Russia liked the American way of "doing a bloke" up in a dark alley better than the Russian method of putting a dynamite cartridge in a piece of home-made pie, and if the King of Italy was in favor of adopting the "bunch of fives" in place of the poisoned stiletto as the booby prize at the court euche parties, but, strange to say, Corbett made evasive replies or asked about the weather whenever I thought I had him nailed to the subject, and I made up my mind that all those stories about the purposes and intentions of his trip abroad emanated from the brain of the most valuable servitor in Corbett's menage—namely, his press agent. That individual has certainly labored indefatigably in his efforts to keep his employer from being forgotten during his sojourn abroad.

Let me recall a few of his successes since the day he inflicted upon us that yarn about Corbett's going abroad upon the urgent solicitation of King Edward, Emperor Wilhelm and a few other more or less known monarchs and things, who were anxious to see how a really clever exponent of the fistic art acted with the mitts on. Somehow or other when he reached his destination he omitted the little formality of sending cards announcing his arrival to Ed, Will and the rest, and the incident about his going abroad to teach them how to spar was forgotten; but he spanked a little French Marquis in Maxim's in Paris one night, and the result was that a cabled history of that affair, magnificently colored and exaggerated, found its way into our local papers. Then he called upon the Hon. Richard Croker at Wantage to learn why his saloon on Broadway was not allowed to keep open after 1 A. M. in violation of the law, saying he was being persecuted by the Tenderloin police for reasons which were not made apparent. This story was also printed for all it was worth. Then came a lull which was broken by the announcement that he had acquired the possession of a block of property on Broadway and would erect a steen-story hotel which would be under his personal direction and management. The originator of this yarn omitted to mention that Corbett doesn't know anything more about running a hotel than a crocodile knows about making a Spanish omelette. The others—and there were others—I have forgotten about, but enough is referred to to demonstrate how actively his agent was employed during Corbett's absence, and his remuneration should be correspondingly large.

Speaking about Young Corbett, his victory over "Kid" Broad and the result of his recent fight with George Dixon have created a demand for his services. Only the other day Sam Harris received a despatch from the Olympic Athletic Club of Butte, Mont., to the effect that that organization was ready to give a purse of $4,000 for a twenty-round bout between Young Corbett and Terry McGovern. Terry is matched to meet Jack Roberts of England and will not be at liberty to clash with any other man until this encounter is settled. According to schedule McGovern and Roberts are to fight some time during November. In making the offer the Western organization failed to state when it intended to pull off the fray. It is understood that the club wants the bout to be decided about the latter part of next month.

Harris has not accepted the club's offer as he wants to find out if Sam Fitzpatrick, Roberts' manager, will permit McGovern to take on anyone else before his bout with the Englishman. In case he receives the permission Harris may ask the club to increase the amount to $5,000 and expenses. Those who have seen Young Corbett perform contend that he is a comer in the featherweight division and that he will give the "Brooklyn Terror" quite a fight.

"Anybody playin' single-out on dem big geezers 'd win a pot full o' canvasbacks," said the motorman, as we rode downtown the other morning. I told him Ruhlín and Jeffries had agreed to sign articles of agreement and would probably fight in 'Frisco late in the fall. "Fust ting yer hear is dere goin' to scrap; den dey ain't, den dey is, and so it keeps on 'till you gets confused keepin' der cases on win, lose, win or fight, nix, fight. I assured him that they had and as he wound up the reel to let me off he said: "Dey-dey, old man; see yer at der ring side if tings break right!"

Jack Root's gameness has become the subject of considerable comment in pugilistic circles, and he is being rather severely criticized for his action in flunking out of a match with Marvin Hart, of Louisville, upon a pretext which no other fighter would have the temerity to make use of. A Chicago critic writes concerning Root as follows: "Jack Root, it appears, will not face Marvin Hart, the hard-hitting Louisville, because Hart will not sanction 'clean breaks.' Root also lays himself open to the charge of being a fine weather fighter. Why any healthy, hearty pugilist should demand 'clean breaks' when matched with anyone else in his particular class is hard to determine. There are any number of ways of interpreting Queensberry rules, and referees differ widely as to the correct way. But most referees agree that no man should be allowed to hold with one hand and punch with the other. Such being the case, a man who sticks to 'clean breaks' creates the suspicion that he wants to catch hold of something with both hands when the fire is becoming hot and be assured protection from assault until the referee orders them to stand away. With both men equally matched as to weight, it looks as if the fairest way is for them to fight themselves loose when they come together in a clinch or partial clinch. It will soon develop then who is inclined to fight and who to hold on."

Queensberry rules prohibit holding, which is nothing but clinching. The boxer who persists in holding his opponent commits a foul, and merits the loss of the de-

"DIDO" PLUMB

NO MATCH FOR PHILADELPHIA

JACK O'BRIEN

Briton Beaten at New Castle in Six Rounds.

YANKEE IS A WONDER

"Coffee Cooler" Craig Passes Him Up and Refuses to Make a Match.

Great Britain's fistic experts are beginning to look upon "Philadelphia" Jack O'Brien as an unbeatable proposition. He supplemented his victories over George Crisp, Harry Newmiller and others by knocking out "Dido" Plumb, the recognized English middle-weight champion, in six rounds. The fight took place at Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Aug. 19. "Dido," who figured as the last man on the list, and the only one thought capable of checking the American, was disposed of with humiliating rapidity, and was completely outclassed from the start.

In view of the fact that Plumb boxed fifteen rounds with the skillful Charles McKeever, of Philadelphia, less than a year ago, it was hoped the Briton would make a good showing against O'Brien. The former, however, was helpless before the science of his opponent, and never had a chance to win.

The bout took place in the ring at Ginnett's Circus, and attracted a very large crowd, the majority of whom were anxious to see Plumb lower the colors of the American. The purse was £650.

The contest was scheduled for fifteen rounds, and the weight fixed at 160 pounds. The men got on the scales at 10 o'clock in the morning, both scaling under the limit, the American having the advantage by a few pounds.

In view of his good record O'Brien ruled a strong favorite, 7 to 2 being offered on his chances, with few takers.

The opening round was characterized by fast and clever work on the part of O'Brien, who feinted, sidestepped, ducked and jabbed in a way that puzzled his slow-going opponent.

The American did not take any chances in the second round, but in the third he jabbed his man hard, puffing his face and bringing the blood to his nose.

When the fourth round began O'Brien decided he understood his opponent's tactics and he proceeded to send in a collection of thumps that dazed the Englishman and sent him reeling to his corner at the bell.

With true British pluck Plumb came out for the fifth and made a dying effort to win. Summoning all his strength, he rushed at the American and swung right and left for the jaw. The alert O'Brien sprang nimbly out of harm's way and then showered blows on the badly pummeled face of his adversary. Still the Briton managed to keep on his feet and got to his corner, although in very badly damaged condition.

Plumb was clearly weak, but still combative. He showed fight at the start and was the aggressor. O'Brien drew a lead, and then countered on the jaw with the left.

Before Plumb could recover O'Brien shot his right to the point of the jaw, the Briton going to the boards in a heap. He pluckily attempted to rise, but could not get on his feet, and was counted out. O'Brien raised his fallen opponent and assisted him to his corner.

It is probable O'Brien will go to America for a visit, as there are no more men of his weight in England for him to meet. Craig, the "Coffee Cooler," cannot be induced to make a match.

YOUNG CORBETT WHIPS DIXON.

George Dixon, the ex-champion featherweight, lost the decision to Young Corbett after ten rounds of the best fighting seen in a long time at Denver, Col., on August 17. Dixon put up one of his old-time battles and held his end up so well that the spectators hooted Referee English's decision, the majority thinking the negro was entitled to at least a draw.

Throughout the contest Dixon was confident and, although Corbett forced the fighting, the ex-champion kept out of trouble and gave the Denverite as good as he received.

In the fifth round Dixon opened up an old wound over Corbett's eye and from then on George used this wound as his main point of attack. Never throughout the battle was there an idle moment.

MACIAS TAKES ON ARTIE SIMMS.

It doesn't take a pugilist's manager long to discover the value of his meal ticket and drop him when his usefulness as a money getter has waned. Several weeks ago Joe Macias was loud in his praises of one "Kid" Broad, whom he declared to be was the man destined to wear the laurel crown of victory when Terry McGovern succumbed to enough punches to justify an ex being added to his title of champion. But Broad unwisely went to Denver and a rude person named Young Corbett did things to him which were not consistent with Macias' expectations, and the latter forthwith dropped his protegee and immediately annexed himself to another presumably new bread winner named Artie Simms, and now finds congenial occupation in letting the great minds of the pugilists world know what the said Simms is going to do in the fighting game under his direction. "The young man is ready to make a match with any of these glove fighters of standing," says Macias. "Simms will take on Terry McGovern at almost anywhere, the weight to be 125 pounds at 3 P. M., or 133 pounds at the ringside. Kid Lavigne, who is said to be in 'his old shape,' will be accepted at any weight."

Simms is a pretty good lad. He has just returned from England, where he failed to induce any good lads to meet him, and now he aspires to win fame by beating McGovern.

of St. John, N. B., for $2,000 and the four-oared championship of the world, and won in 41 minutes, 16 seconds. Later they rowed the Paris crew, of St. John, N. B., on the Connecticut river, Springfield, Mass., for $5,000 and the four-oared championship of the world. The Paris crew won, rowing the six miles and turn in 39 minutes, 28½ seconds.

Young Corbett and Artie Simms, lightweight pugilists, have been matched to box ten rounds before the Denver (Col.) Athletic Club on Sept. 27.

Jim Scanlan, the Pittsburg middleweight, is training Perry Queenan to meet Rube Turner, at Stockton, Cal., the latter part of the month.

Jim Jeffries says that he is not trying to avoid a fight with Gus Ruhlman, but will meet him as soon as he signs articles of agreement and a suitable purse is offered.

While training Tommy Wilson met with an accident, and has asked the management of the Findlay (Ohio) Club to postpone his match with "Big" Mackey one week.

Johnny Madden, of Brooklyn, who at one time was the amateur bantam champion of America, is to put on the gloves again. Madden has been matched to box Clarence Forbes, of Chicago, at Kansas City within a month.

George Lawler, who is at Spokane Falls, has issued a challenge to meet Gus Ruhlman and claims he has a backer who will invest $1,000 on his chances to he won a number of hard-fought races, and earned a record of 2:16½. He retired to the stud for two years, and came out again with Richard Curt's in charge and made a record of 2:10½ at Nashville.

R. H., Luzerne, N. Y.—In any contest, whether prize fighting, foot racing, etc., the result of the contest hinges on the decision given by the referee, just the same as the decision of judges in a running race on the turf or a trotting contest.

Sport, N. H.—1. All the America's Cup Yacht Race Records are published in the POLICE GAZETTE SPORTING ANNUAL. 2. All Pugilists of note and quite a number of the lesser lights are also in the ANNUAL. 3. Send ten cents to this office and we will mail the ANNUAL direct. 4. We do not answer queries by mail. 5. THE POLICE GAZETTE subscription price is $1.00 for thirteen weeks. 6. We would not give an opinion differing from a referee's decision; but the sporting editor's comments are his privilege.

A. J. H., St. Paul, Minn.—Advise customary method of awarding prizes in any form of athletic sports in which (competing for three prizes) four parties were tied for first place. Is only one of the four entitled to take a prize, viz., the first, leaving the fifth man to take the second prize and the sixth man take the third; or, is it customary for the four that have tied for first to settle ownership of the three prizes by mutual agreement? The four who tied divide the three prizes in any way they decide. The fifth man gets nothing.

E. L., Nashville, Tenn.—The Ward crew in 1867 comprised Joshua, Gilbert, Charley and Henry Ward. They did not beat the Paris crew at Springfield. On Sept. 11, 1867, they rowed a six-mile race, three miles and a turn, in four-oared shell, against the Morris crew, defeat the "Akron Giant." A Butte, Mont., club, it is said, will offer a purse for Ruhlman and Lawler.

Joe Bernstein has opened a boxing school in one of the fashionable quarters of San Francisco, and is doing well.

Tom Sharkey has issued a challenge to Gus Ruhlman. The sailor now agrees to stop Ruhlman in ten rounds and bet a little on the side.

Hank Griffin, the California heavyweight, who was Jim Jeffries' first opponent, knocked out Ben Tremble, of Portland, Ore., in three rounds at Los Angeles the other night.

The Ohio Sporting Club has under consideration a match between Eugene Bezenah and Eddie Burns to come off at Dayton, O. Sammy Phillips wants to meet the winner.

Billy Lavigne, brother to "Kid" Lavigne, who is at Frisco, says that he has practically induced the California clubs to hang up a juicy incentive for the former lightweight champion and Frank Erne.

Barney Furey is in Dayton, O., looking after a match with George Lavigne or any other good lightweight. The Ohio Sporting Club wanted to put Furey on with Lavigne for the club's opening attraction next month.

Fitzsimmons is one of the few prizefighters who have succeeded in holding the respect of the general public. His friends are not confined to the sporting fraternity. His dignity and unobtrusiveness have gained him a following among all ranks of society.

WANTS TO FIGHT CREEDON.

I am open to meet Dan Creedon at catch weights, or at 165 pounds, before the club offering the best purse and a side bet. HARRY COVERT, Terre Haute, Ind.

ABOUT SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

Newsy Briefs Concerning Men of Note All Over the Country.

It is reported that a Russian horse owner has offered Jockey Beauchamp $5,000 to ride for him.

Directum Kelly, 2:08 1-4, has been thrown out of training, as Scott McCoy feared to break him down.

The Lycoming County Fair to be held at Williamsport, Pa., September 3 to 6 will be better this year than ever.

Jimmy Manning denies that he has signed several members of the Philadelphia National League team for next season.

Frank Robinson, of St. Louis, says the Pittsburg Club is the only one in the League that is signing players for next season.

There will be $2,500 in purses for the trotters and pacers at the Tomkins County Agricultural Society meeting at Ithaca, N. Y., September 27 to 30.

For the English Derby of 1903 there will be a strong American representation, as entries have been received from forty prominent owners in this country.

At Sacramento recently Ho Yow, the Chinese Consul General at San Francisco, won the 2:23 trot with his mare Solo in straight half-mile heats in 1:10, 1:06½, 1:05.

Perry T. Hale, the star full-back of the championship Yale eleven, will have to undergo a delicate operation as a result of injuries received in the Yale-Harvard game last fall.

W. C. Whitney has engaged as second trainer the well-known Western man, George Walker, who for years handled with great success the stable of John W. Schorr, of Memphis.

In a little more than ten days Cincinnati has played three 12-inning games, one of 13 innings and one 14 innings. The Reds won all but the 13-inning game, which they lost to St. Louis.

George Bennett has been offered $30,000 by R. T. Wilson for his famous pair of flyers, Abe Frank and Ed Austin, and the response he made was that they could not be bought for $50,000.

President Hart, of Chicago, is alarmed at reports of defections and is signing men for next year. Hartzell has a better offer from the American League and is holding off for more money.

Sir Thomas Lipton says that the Shamrock II. is nine minutes faster than the Shamrock I. now, and that the Shamrock I. is five to ten minutes faster than when she was in American waters.

J. P. Jones, of Boston, states that he represents a syndicate that has $700 that says Bobbie Walthour can defeat James Moran by one lap in twenty-five miles any time the pair meet in a race.

Ed. Geers is reported to have said to a friend in New York this week: "Wait till I get The Abbot good again and we reach Lexington in October. I want you to be the first man to congratulate me when we trot in 2:01½."

New York cricketers are endeavoring to raise a guarantee fund to bring an English team to that place next month. The foreigners are coming to this country at the invitation of the Associated Cricket Club of Philadelphia.

Danny Maher, the crack American jockey, who was reported as being dangerously ill in England and had been advised to quit riding forever, is not by any means as sick as a boy as the reports from England would have us believe.

Jay Eye See, 2:10 trotting and 2:06 1-4 pacing, nearly bled to death recently, at the Case farm, near Racine, Wis., where he has been allowed to run about for the past eight years. The gelding struck a foreleg on a barbed wire fencing and cut himself badly.

Many rumors were afloat in New York recently as to a possible sale of Cresceus to foreign parties, but George H. Ketcham, his owner, refuses to either confirm or deny them. An English millionaire will try to buy the champion and will offer at least $50,000 for him.

Walter Smith, of New York, at the championship meet of the National Cycling Association at Buffalo, lowered the five-mile amateur American paced record from 9 minutes to 8 minutes and 27 1-5 seconds. Smith also broke the two and three mile records.

The arrival in America of a new "Terrible Turk" renders a match for Nourouhah, where his size and weight will be matched, possible in this country. The newcomer is called Zerlack. He is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 287 pounds. Zerlack is now in Cincinnati.

Jimmy Adams, well known to the sporting world, died at Saratoga Friday after a long illness. Ten years ago Adams was one of the biggest bookmakers in the East. He was a daring plunger and became widely known because of the rapidity with which he accumulated a fortune.

"Major" Taylor has complained that two things have operated to bring about his defeat in the last three races he has ridden. One is the combination of several professionals, by which one man is told off to ride Taylor to death each night. The other is the small board tracks which he does not find to his liking.

With Ten Eyck out of the way the sculling attraction is C. S. Titus, of the Union Boat Club, who beat the record for the Schuylkill course in winning the association championship at the National Regatta. Frank B. Greer, who was defeated by Ten Eyck in the championship singles, is anxious to get a crack at Titus.

CURES QUICKER
Than any other remedy. Tarrant's Extract of Cubeba and Copaiba is a safe, certain and quick cure for gonorrhea and gleet and is an old-tried remedy for all diseases of the urinary organs. Combining in a highly concentrated form the medicinal virtues of cubeba and copaiba, its portable shape, freedom from taste and speedy action (curing in less time than any other preparation) make it the most valuable known remedy. To prevent fraud, see that every package has a red strip across the face of label, with the signature of Tarrant & Co., N. Y., upon it. Price, $1.00. Sold by all druggists.

POPULAR TONSORIALISTS

Lucien E. Knox, an Expert Barber of Georgetown, S. C.

Lucien E. Knox is an expert young tonsorialist, who is associated in the barber business in Georgetown, S. C., with a man by the name of Ashe. The firm is a popular one, and as their methods are strictly up-to-date, they have managed to make a success of their venture. Both of the young men, notwithstanding their youth, are past-masters in the art of wielding skillfully the razor and shears, and by their courteous treatment of customers they have made an enviable reputation for themselves.

Both are fond of sports and never miss an opportunity to see a good bout, or lay a little bet on a horse race.

TONSORIAL NOTES.

One of the leading barbers of Burr Oak, Kan., is Fred Kerns.

J. De Loyer is one of the leading tonsorialists of Escanaba, Mich.

D. M. Hawley does a fine paying business. His address is Linden, Mich.

Bryant and Lovering are a team of successful barbers of Cedarvale, Kan.

A. H. Chopel is the only barber of Asherville, Kan., so he gets all the trade.

Alva Warren is one of the most prosperous tonsorialists of Clayton, Kan.

Conger & Gow are partners in a fine paying barber shop at Beattie, Kan.

A. J. Frederickson is one of the most influential tonsorialists of Amarillo, Kan.

Martin Henline is a hustling and up-to-date tonsorialist of Bluff City, Kan.

John Chapman is one of the best known tonsorialists in Cedarville, Kan.

William Ward is the man who does most of the good shaving at Bancroft, Kan.

H. B. Brichel has a handsome little shop at Alton, Kan. He is very popular.

C. Leggett, of Cedarvale, Kan., gets his share of the tonsorial business of the town.

R. Hall is a very successful tonsorialist of Baldwin, Kan. He has many friends.

William Schroder is an enterprising and expert barber of New Buffalo, Mich.

Preddy & Morgan have a fine tonsorial establishment at Berrien Springs, Mich.

E. D. Linsea is "the" barber of Farwell, Mich., and he is popular with the sports.

There is no better nor more popular tonsorialist in Holt, Mich., than A. J. Black.

Joice & Brumbaugh are a team of hustling and up-to-date tonsorialists of Axtell, Kan.

B. C. Garrett, of Linden, Mich., is a great lover of all athletic sports and a good fellow.

Walker & Dixon have established an especially handsome shop at Escanaba, Mich.

W. E. Kuchule is the owner of a well-established barber shop at Menominee, Mich.

Fred Carlson is the genial proprietor of a well-attended establishment at Atwood, Kan.

R. M. Wilbur, a sporting tonsorialist, has a well-appointed shop at Burr Oak, Kan.

C. C. Koppie is in business for himself at Burlington, Kan., and he has a good trade.

Fred Snyder, a clever barber of Atwood, Kan., is rapid and expert hand with the razor.

E. J. Herrick, whose well-patronized shop is located at Bancroft, Me., thoroughly understands his business. He is a lover of sports.

Joe Dickensheets, a prosperous tonsorialist of Burlington, Kan., is doing a good business.

Joe De Grass, whose shop is at Menominee, Mich., pays particular attention to the art of hair cutting and is considered an expert.

DATENO AFTER PAVESE.

Antonio R. Dateno, champion bicycle broadswordman, called at the POLICE GAZETTE office, with his manager, J. E. Flordalini, and challenged Generoso Pavese, holder of the "Police Gazette" championship belt, to meet him in a contest with swords and foils for 25 points each, and five rounds with swords to follow. Dateno's manager says that he has tried in every possible way to get on a contest with Pavese, but the latter has persistently refused to meet him. Flordalini says he will back Dateno for any amount up to $500. It's now up to Pavese to meet Dateno or forfeit the belt.

AN AMERICAN HAREM.

Story of a Little Oriental Kingdom in the State of Colorado.

This story may not be true, it is very likely that it isn't. It will be printed, however, not as a fact, but because it is interesting.

Near Walsenburg, Col., there lives a rich Mexican with a little kingdom of his own. Within his household he has forty beautiful Mexican girls, all his slaves.

A prominent lawyer of Walsenburg has made a complaint to the Governor, and says the laws of Colorado are being violated by the Mexican and his people. In addition to having more wives than the law allows he is head of a strange religious sect.

The lawyer during his visit to the place saw many huge crosses which were borne up the mountain side some 200 yards and return. This work was done as penance, and every member of the Mexican's belief is supposed at some time during every month to carry this huge cross up the mountain and return. Many members of the sect flag themselves monthly. This custom of flagellation is practiced by both men and women, and is carried on in earnest. Blood is frequently seen flowing from the wounds made by the lash. It is said that the old grandee's power is such that when he selects the daughter of some humble householder as an addition to his menage none dares oppose him. In this way many a young Mexican loses a sweetheart, and it is a wonder that some vows of vengeance against him have not been carried out.

Like the Sultan himself, it is said, the Mexican has commissioners who are always on the lookout for the most beautiful Mexican girls. He owns water rights and lands to such an extent that every person in the vicinity is apparently dependent upon him. It is said a formal complaint will soon be made against him and his harem investigated.
